Qualification Description

Master's Degree Program:

1. Aims and Educational Objectives

The Master's program "Communication: language, literature, media" aims on the one hand to offer the opportunity to the students who have received a Bachelor's degree in English Philology either in a Bulgarian or foreign institution of higher education, as well as to the graduates in the area of study 1.3. Methodology of Foreign Language Education in ..., which provides them with the professional qualification of "English Language Teacher", to improve their professional qualification in the field of various forms of communication from the perspective of the interaction between literature and the media in the globalizing world of computers and the Internet. It aims to introduce the students to the different facets of the study and practice of communication – as a theoretical issue, as a pedagogical and practical tool, and as an artistic phenomenon in the highly technologized world of today. On the other hand, it provides a deepening of the knowledge of undergraduates in other fields of the humanities, social sciences and pedagogical sciences, who want to teach British and American literature, culture and language, while also expanding their media literacy and digital literacy and preparing them to work in and with the media. The MA program's rationale follows the EU's policy towards enhanced language proficiency as a way of preserving the cultural diversity of the Old Continent, as well as the EU's requirement to increase media literacy among Europe's citizens. In connection with the EU's multilingualism policy of mastering more than one foreign language, students are offered intensive study of a second foreign language.

2. Description of the educational content (knowledge and skills required for a successful professional realization; general and theoretical background, specific areas of study, etc.)

"Communication: language, literature, media" (in English) is a two-semester distance learning Master's program in English for specialists – BA English majors. The percentage of in-person classes is less than 20 % and these are primarily introductory and concluding lectures. The majority of classes are held online in the Moodle platform, where all coursework is completed by students either synchronously or asynchronously. For the participants who have a Bachelor's degree in the area of study "English Philology", or in the area of study 1.3. Methodology of Foreign Language Education in ..., which provides them with the professional qualification of "English Language Teacher" specialized courses are provided, training them in new skills in analyzing, speaking, writing, presenting and research in the foreign language, alongside deepening their knowledge and competences acquired in the Bachelor's degree programs. Participants undertake an intensive study of a second foreign language from among the languages offered at the Faculty of Classical and New Philology. Courses focus particularly on the practical implementation of a variety of online writing and teaching tools, as well as developing the students' skills for creative work in a digital environment. There is also the possibility of optional study of a specialized module to build skills for language work in a business environment.

3. Professional and general competences, specific competences

Particular attention is paid to expanding the intercultural and interpersonal communication skills of the program participants, as well as to building solid research skills for those who would go on to the third level of university education, the PhD. The program involves experts and grantees from the Fulbright Educational Exchange Program, as well as Elizabeth Kostova Foundation guest lecturers in creative writing from the United States, who serve to develop the participants' creative potential and language skills. Practical internships in schools and different mass media, as well as in EU programs (Erasmus +) are included. Some of the English classes are taught by native speakers, and students are introduced to new interactive teaching methods.

4. Professional realization (according to the National Classification of Occupations in the Republic of Bulgaria /based on the International Standard Classification of Occupations (ISCO)/ and in reference to the place of the future specialists in the National Qualifications Framework for higher education and the European Qualifications Framework for higher education)

Upon completion of the program, students can pursue professional careers as highly qualified researchers and teachers in the field of contemporary British and American literature, language and culture, in addition to all other professional fields that require high intercultural and communicative competence, as they are fully equipped to work in mass media and new media as a primary channel for the transmission of information. They can therefore be employed as well-trained professionals in European cultural institutions, NGOs and human resource development agencies and in all mass media. All successful graduates of the program can continue their studies in the third degree to obtain a doctorate. According to the Bulgarian National Classification of Professions and Positions, as an upgrading specialization for graduates of English Philology, profession 2643-6009 Philologist, graduates of the Master's program can also work in various professions with the code 264: "Writers, journalists, linguists", as well as in those with the code 2653: "Translators and other linguists"; in Class 1 "Managers", for example, 1345 "Managers in the field of education" and in Class 2 "Professionals", such as 23 "Teachers", and in particular 231 "Teachers in higher education". According to the European Qualifications Framework for Higher Education, the knowledge and skills they will acquire correspond to level 7.
